Our life is what our thoughts make it (Marcus Aurelius 121-180 AD)

What was once thought, can never be un-thought
(Friedrich Durrenmatt, b.1921 Swiss)

We make a living by what we get, But we make a life by what we give (Sir Winston Churchill 1874-1965)

The purpose of life is to matter – to count, to stand for something,
To have it make some difference that we have lived at all (Leo Rosten, b. 1908 – Polish)

At present, our body is undoubtedly the centre of our whole universe. We associate it, without thinking, with our earth self and ego, and this thoughtless and false association continuously reinforces our illusion of their inseparable, concrete existence. Because our body seems so convincingly to exist, our "I" seems to exist, and "you" seem to exist, the entire illusory, dualistic world that we never stop projecting around us, also looks ultimately solid and real. When we die, this whole compound construction falls dramatically to pieces. (Sogyal Rinpoche, 'Glimpse After Glimpse' April 25)

Self Realisation:

I am God and you are God,
the difference is that I know it and you don't (Sri Sathya Sai Baba)

Self Responsibility: Our future depends upon the decisions we make and the work and service we give.

True success will not come unless we make an effort and deserve it and show that we can handle the ensuing workload (William Lambert)

Divine Right Order:

In the quote above from Sogyal Rinpoche, he speaks of the illusory, dualistic world. There is no duality, all is One. All is contained within the primordial sound "AUM" (see leading article in Link 17, page 1)

In accordance with the Laws of Karma (cause and effect) and Dharma (opportunity for right living) we ourselves shape our physical and spiritual destinies. Physical: You are what you eat, drink and do

Spiritual: You are what you think and how you live

Fatalism: An unacceptable submissive attitude to events

I often hear people say "Everything will work out in Divine right order" – it is obvious that some understand it while some do not – those people sincerely think that they have to do nothing because the Divine will step in and do it for them. This simply is not true. As you are part of the Divine, you help to shape it. It is your self-responsibility to make decisions, take action and indicate the direction in which you wish to go. Until you do so, the collective higher Divine will not step in because it has delegated to YOU, self-responsibility and free choice (or free will). If you do nothing, the Divine will respect that choice and leave you in peace and quite likely boredom, to contemplate your navel! Do not fritter your allotted life span away. Wasting time is wasting God. God helps those who help themselves

A car does not move until the driver puts the key in the ignition, starts the engine, uses the brake, gears and accelerator in order that the car may move in the direction and speed chosen by the driver. It is the same with the Divine. We have to make decisions, take action in order to indicate the goal we wish to achieve. If it is right, the collective wise Divine will help to make it happen. If it is wrong, progress will be difficult and you will be shown that you have chosen the wrong direction. You, the Divine practical mystic, are the driver of your life.

(William Lambert)

There cannot be Discipleship without Discipline and Deep Commitment
(William)

Healing with Colour by Christine Day

PAMELA Blake-Wilson gave an inspiring presentation on the healing powers of colour at Horsham Park Barn on Sunday, May 22. The all-day seminar was in support of BMS International Healing Federation and preceded the AGM.

Pamela is Colour Director of the Centre of New Directions in Tunbridge Wells, Kent, formerly the College of Psychotherapeutics founded by Ronald Beesley who in the Sixties pioneered research into healing with light, colour and sound. He developed a distant healing treatment applied directly into the subtle energy systems upon which the physical and psychological states depend.

For twenty years Pamela, an international lecturer and practitioner, has been on her own journey into healing with light and colour. Her in depth knowledge is fascinating and inspirational.

She commenced the presentation by asking everyone to come forward and select the colour they were most attracted to from a cascade of silks, satins and other materials arranged on the floor. She asked them to wear the colour, to experience a response and feel into the divine quality within the vibration.

Pamela then worked through the spectrum, describing the qualities of each colour and how they could be used therapeutically.

Red, she explained, links with the base chakra. It is hot, creative and powerful. It energises and grounds and is good for the circulation. It works on sexuality, appetites, survival. Red is a good colour to use for weight problems, she stressed, because it speeds the metabolism.

Orange is warm, expansive, creative.

"The more you open your mind," explained Pam, "the more creative you become. The more you seek the more you find. You can't find solutions if your thoughts are cramped. If something is not moving and open, how on earth is it going to function? Orange aids digestion because it opens up the system and allows assimilation. It is a nourishing vibration and links with the sacral chakra. Orange is healing, balancing and humane, like a gift. It also works with the muscular system.

Yellow works with the nervous system and gives us clarity and our identity. It links with the solar plexus chakra.

Green links with the heart chakra. It helps create balance and harmony, and works on the heart and lungs.

Blue links with the throat chakra. This energy contracts and contains information. It is good for bringing down temperatures and is a very calming energy. It influences self-expression and how we express our truth."

Pam sees indigo as a very mysterious colour. It is a sympathetic vibration, she said, and links with the brow chakra (third eye). It works on the endocrine system. Lastly she spoke about violet which links with the crown chakra and the spirit and soul coming into life. She rounded off an enlightening day by answering a series of questions from the floor.
